

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

Google's mission is to organize the world's information and to make it universally accessible and useful. Google Book Search helps readers discover the world's books while helping authors and publishers reach new audiences. #### DEDICATION.

POETS! crowned with years and fame, Ye need not here be called by name, As at your feet I humbly lay This sheaf I've gathered day by day. Its fairest, ripest grain was found In your own fields, rich, world-renowned: And that of lesser worth will gain A deeper value, if ye deign To take it in your honoring hands. In this your own and other lands, Your birthdays have been loved and kept By many who with you have wept The vanished face of him who, led By "an unfaltering trust," is dead, Yet lives, as ye shall live, revered, By every year the more endeared.

A. L. H.

CAMBRIDGE, September, 1880.

PUBLISHERS' NOTE.

THIS BIRTHDAY BOOK has been compiled upon a plan that ranges over the whole field of American poetry, and includes all the most striking and appropriate passages wherever found.

The superior variety and richness of such selection as far excels a collection from any one author as the whole body of American verse exceeds that of even its most eminent single member.

Selected portraits of many of the bestknown poets complete and accompany the quotations from their works.

THE NEW YEAR.

NEW YEAR, if you were bringing Youth,
As you are bringing Age,
I would not have it back, in sooth;
I have no strength to wage
Lost battles over. Let them be,
Bury your dead, O Memory!

Good-by, since you are gone, Old Year,
And my past life, good-by!

I shed no tear upon your bier,
For it is well to die.

New Year, your worst will be my best —
What can an old man want but rest?

R. H. Stoddard.

The years have linings just as goblets do:
The old year is the lining of the new;
Filled with the wine of precious memories,
The golden was doth line the silver is.

C. F. Bates.

JANUARY.

UNWARMED by any sunset light The gray day darkened into night, -A night made hoary with the swarm And whirl-dance of the blinding storm. As zigzag wavering to and fro Crossed and recrossed the winged snow; And ere the early bed-time came The white drift piled the window-frame, And through the glass the clothes-line posts Looked in like tall and sheeted ghosts.

So all night long the storm roared on: The morning broke without a sun;

All day the hoary meteor fell, And when the second morning shone We looked upon a world unknown;

No cloud above, no earth below, -A universe of sky and snow! 7. G. Whittier.

January 1.

Lament who will, in fruitless tears, The speed with which our moments fly; I sigh not over vanished years, But watch the years that hasten by.

W. C. Bryant.

Go breathe it in the ear
Of all who doubt and fear,
And say to them, "Be of good cheer."

H. W. Longfellow.

January 2.

None looked upon her but he straightway thought Of all the greenest depths of country cheer, And into each one's heart was freshly brought What was to him the sweetest time of year; So was her every look and motion fraught With out-of-door delights and forest lere; Not the first violet on a woodland lea Seemed more a visible gift of Spring than she.

**T. R. Lowell.**

Merrily upon the land, Gay and grand, Here I stand, And turn my eyes to see What life may mean to me.

E. S. Phelps.

January 4.

Loveliest of lovely things are they
On earth, that soonest pass away.
The rose that lives its little hour
Is prized beyond the sculptured flower;
Even love, long tried and cherished long,
Becomes more tender and more strong,
At thought of that insatiate grave
From which its yearnings cannot save.

W. C. Bryant.

- January 5.

Though love repine and reason chafe,
There came a voice without reply—
"'Tis man's perdition to be safe
When for the truth he ought to die."

R. W. Emerson.

Men's lives, like oceans, change In shifting tides, and ebb from either shore Till the strong planet draws them on once more.

R. C. Stedman.

- January 6.

Many a youth, as he knelt in the church and opened his missal,

Fixed his eyes upon her as the saint of his deepest devotion;

Happy was he who might touch her hand or the hem of her garment! H. W. Longfellow.

Through love to light! Through light, O God, to thee,

Who art the Love of love, the eternal Light of light!

R. W. Gilder.

Thy dress was like the lilies,
And thy heart as pure as they:
One of God's holy messengers
Did walk with me that day.

H. W. Longfellow.

Year after year her tender steps pursuing, Behold her grown more fair.

H. W. Longfellow.

January 8.

His youth was innocent; his riper age
Marked with some act of goodness every day;
And watched by eyes that loved him, calm and sage,
Faded his late declining years away.
Cheerful he gave his being up and went
To share the holy rest that waits a life well spent.

January 9.

Underneath the winter's snows,

The invisible hearts of flowers grow ripe for blossoming!

And the lives that look so cold, if their stories could be told,

Would seem seet in centler mould would seem full

Would seem cast in gentler mould, would seem full of love and spring.

T. B. Aldrich.

W. C. Bryant.

January 10.

Her name before she was a queen boots not.

When she was crowned, her kingdom said, "The Queen!"

And, after that, all other names too mean By far had seemed. Perhaps all were forgot, Save "Queen, sweet Queen."

Mrs. H. H. Jackson.

January 11. -

Hearts, like apples, are hard and sour,
Till crushed by Pain's resistless power;
And yield their juices rich and bland
To none but Sorrow's heavy hand.
The purest streams of human love
Flow naturally never,
But gush by pressure from above,
With God's hand on the lever.

J. G. Holland.

January 12. -

Ah, dream too bright to last!
Ah, starry Hope! that didst arise
But to be overcast!
A voice from out the future cries
"On! On!" but o'er the Past,
(Dim gulf!) my spirit hovering lies
Mute, motionless, aghast.

Proud abroad, and proud at home,
Proud wherever she chanced to come,
When she was glad and when she was glum;
Proud as the head of a Saracen
Over the door of a tippling-shop!
Proud as a duchess, proud as a fop,
"Proud as a boy with a bran-new top,"
Proud beyond comparison!

J. G. Saxe.

Not enjoyment, and not sorrow, Is our destined end or way; But to act that each to-morrow Find us farther than to-day.

In the world's broad field of battle, In the bivouac of Life, Be not like dumb, driven cattle! Be a hero in the strife!

H. W. Longfellow.

January 15.

A beautiful and happy girl,
With step as light as summer air,
Eyes glad with smiles, and brow of pearl,
Shadowed by many a careless curl
Of unconfined and flowing hair;
A seeming child in every thing,
Save thoughtful brow and ripening charms,
As Nature wears the smile of Spring
When sinking into Summer's arms.

True to all Truth the world denies, Not tongue-tied for its gilded sin; Not always right in all men's eyes, But faithful to the light within.

Who makes another's grief his own,
Whose smile lends joy a double cheer;
Where lives the saint, if such be known?
Speak softly, — such an one is here!

O. W. Holmes.

Like one who leaves the trampled street
For some cathedral, cool and dim,
Where he can hear in music beat
The heart of prayer, that beats for him;
Restored and comforted, I go
To grapple with my tasks again;
Through silent worship taught to know
The blessed peace that follows pain.

Bayard Taylor.

Go where he will, the wise man is at home, His hearth the earth, — his hall the azure dome; 'Where his clear spirit leads him, there's his road, By God's own light illumined and foreshowed.

R. W. Emerson.

All things come round to him who will but wait.

H. W. Longfellow.

Angel of Patience! sent to calm
Our feverish brows with cooling palm;
To lay the storms of hope and fear,
And reconcile life's smile and tear;
The throbs of wounded pride to still,
And make our own our Father's will.

7. G. Whittier.

January 23.

We should waste no moments in weak regret,
If the day were but one;
If what we remember and what we forget
Went out with the sun;
We should be from our clamorous selves set free,
To work or to pray,
To be what the Father would have us be,

It we had but a day.

Mrs. M. L. Dickinson.

January 24. -

Count me o'er earth's chosen heroes, — they were souls that stood alone,

While the men they agonized for hurled the contumelious stone,

Stood serene, and down the future saw the golden beam incline

To the side of perfect justice, mastered by their faith divine.

By one man's plain truth to manhood and to God's supreme design.

9. R. Lowell.

- Junuary 25.

Patience; accomplish thy labor, accomplish thy work of affection!

Sorrow and silence are strong, and patient endurance is godlike.

Therefore accomplish thy labor of love till the heart is made godlike,

Purified, strengthened, perfected, and rendered more worthy of heaven!

H. W. Longfellow.

January 26.

Among so many, can He care?
Can special love be everywhere?
I asked: my soul bethought of this:
In just that very place of His
Where He hath put and keepeth you,
God hath no other thing to do!

Mrs. A. D. T. Whitney.

January 27.

I saw her there a household dove, In consummated peace of love; And sweeter joy and saintlier grace Breathed o'er the beauty of her face.

The mother's smile, the children's kiss, And home's serene abounding bliss; The fruitage of a life that bore But idle summer blooms before.

Bayard Taylor.

January 28.

So trusting Him whose love he knows, Singing along the road he goes; And nightly of his burden makes A pillow till the morning breaks.

He longs to go, — he loves to stay; —
For God is both his Home and Way.

Lucy Larcom.

January 29.

Dear maid, in thy girlhood's opening flower,
Scarce weaned from the love of childish play!
The tears on whose cheeks are but the shower
That freshens the blooms of early May!
Light-hearted maiden, oh, heed thy feet!
Oh, keep where that beam of Paradise falls;
And only wander where thou may'st meet
The blessed ones from its shining walls.

W. C. Bryant.

January 30.

Some men were born for great things, Some were born for small, Some, it is not recorded Why they were born at all.

Will Carleton.

I once was a jolly young beau
And knew how to pick up a fan,
But I've done with all that, you must know,
For now I'm a family man!

5. G. Saze.

January 31.

Therefore, great heart, bear up! thou art but type Of what all lofty spirits endure, that fain Would win men back to strength and peace through

Each hath his lonely peak, and on each heart Envy, or scorn, or hatred, tears lifelong With vulture beak; yet the high soul is left; And faith, which is but hope grown wise; and love And patience, which at last shall overcome.

7. R. Lowell.

FEBRUARY.

COME when the rains Have glazed the snow, and clothed the trees with ice, While the slant sun of February pours Into the bowers a flood of light. Approach! The incrusted surface shall upbear thy steps, And the broad arching portals of the grove Welcome thy entering. Look! the massy trunks Are cased in the pure crystal; each light spray, Nodding and tinkling in the breath of heaven. Is studded with its trembling water-drops, That glimmer with an amethystine light.

All, all is light; Light without shade. But all shall pass away With the next sun. From numberless vast trunks, Loosened, the crashing ice shall make a sound Like the far roar of rivers, and the eve Shall close o'er the brown woods as it was wont. W. C. Bryant.

February 1. .

God forgive me! But I've thought
A thousand times that if I had His power,
Or He my love, we'd have a different world
From this we live in.

J. G. Holland.

What matters it! A few years more, Life's surge, so restless heretofore, Shall break upon the unknown shore!

J. G. Whittier.

February 2. -

Fair as a summer's dream was Margaret,—
Such dream as in a poet's soul might start,
Musing of old loves while the moon doth set:
Her hair was not more sunny than her heart,
Though like a natural golden coronet
It circled her dear head, with careless art
Mocking the sunshine, that would fain have lent
To its frank grace a richer ornament.

J. R. Lowell.

- February 3. -

No fear that any poet dies unknown,
Whose songs are written in the hearts that know
And love him, though their partial verdict show
The tenderness that moves the critic's blame.
Those few have power to lift his name above
Forgetfulness, to grant that noblest fame
Which sets its trumpet to the lips of Love!

Bayard Taylor.

Day has blue heavens, but Baptiste has blue eyes. Within them shines for me a heaven of love, A heaven all happiness like that above.

H. W. Longfellow.

The very flowers that bend and meet, In sweetening others grow more sweet.

O. W. Holmes.

February 5.

Whom He will choose, He chooseth: some to honor, Some to dishonor; this to be and bear, And that to dare and do; these bear his swords, And these his chains.

E. S. Phelps.

God sets some souls in shade alone; They have no daylight of their own: Only in lives of happier ones They see the shine of distant suns.

Mrs. A. D. T. Whitney.

I wish — that friends were always true,
And motives always pure;
I wish the good were not so few,

I wish that practising was not
So different from preaching!

I have no answer for myself or thee,
Save that I learned beside my mother's knee:
"All is of God that is, and is to be;
And God is good." Let this suffice us still,
Resting in childlike trust upon his will
Who moves to his great ends unthwarted by the Ripe were the maiden's years; her stature showed Womanly beauty, and her clear, calm eye Was bright with venturous spirit, yet her face Was passionless, like those by sculptor graved For niches in a temple. Lovers oft Had wooed her, but she only laughed at love, And wondered at the silly things they said.

W. C. Bryant.

God sends what the true heart brings: Stranger or familiar hand, Priest among his holy things, Only bears the gift He planned.

And the best of all He sends
Is no measured dole, but love;
Is not cumbering goods, but friends;
Wingèd souls with ours to move.

Lucy Larcom.

February 11. -

Life is joy, and love is power,
Death all fetters doth unbind,
Strength and wisdom only flower
When we toil for all our kind.
Hope is truth, — the future giveth
More than present takes away,
And the soul for ever liveth
Nearer God from day to day.

J. R. Lowell.

February 12.

Alas! by what rude fate
Our lives, like ships at sea, an instant meet,
Then part for ever on their courses fleet!

E. C. Stedman.

Angels of Life and Death alike are His;
Without His leave they pass no threshold o'er;
Who, then, would wish or dare, believing this,
Against His messengers to shut the door?

H. W. Longfellow.

February 13.

All common things, each day's events, That with the hour begin and end, Our pleasures and our discontents, Are rounds by which we may ascend.

We have not wings, we cannot soar;
But we have feet to scale and climb
By slow degrees, by more and more,
The cloudy summits of our time.

H. W. Longfellow

February 14.

Life is good and life is fair, Love awaits thee everywhere: Love! is Love's immortal prayer.

Live for love, and thou shalt be, Loving others, true to me: Love, I follow, follow thee!

Bavard Tavlor.

February 15.

A heart, which, like a fine-toned lute,
With every breath of feeling woke,
And even when the tongue was mute,
From eye and lip in music spoke.

3. G. Whittier.

He did not find his sleep less sweet

For music in some other street.

H. W. Longfellow.

February 16.

They who love best need friendship most; Hearts only thrive on varied good; And he who gathers from a host Of friendly hearts his daily food Is the best friend that we can boast.

J. G. Holland.

February 17.

Queen of a day, by flatterers caressed, How beautiful! how beautiful she is! H. W. Longfellow.

Her beauty, guarded, kept her beautiful.

"Sunshine of Saint Eulalie" was she called; for that was the sunshine

Which, as the farmers believed, would load their orchards with apples;

She too would bring to her husband's house delight

She, too, would bring to her husband's house delight and abundance,

Filling it full of love and the ruddy faces of children.

H. W. Longfellow.

Hold fast the truth that God is good.

J. G. Whittier.

February 20. -

The dropping of love's golden fruit, The slowly builded walls of distance, The outstretched hand, the meeting foot, Withdrawn in doubt, and drear, late chance Of cooling Autumn; wind and sand

But I stand,

All that life means to me.

E. S. Phelos.

February 21. -

High was her heart, and yet was well inclined, Her manners made of bounty well refined; For capitals, and marble courts, her eye still seemed to see,

Minstrels and kings and high-born dames, and of the best that be.

R. W. Emerson.

February 22.

Strength to his hours of manly toil! Peace to his starlit dreams! Who loves alike the furrowed soil, The music-haunted streams!

Sweet smiles to keep for ever bright The sunshine on his lips, And faith that sees the ring of light Round nature's last eclipse!

O. W. Holmes.

February 23.

In all his ways

A breath can turn to tempest, and the force
Of rooted firs that slowly split the stone.

Bayard Taylor.

Be but yourselves, be pure, be true, And prompt in duty; heed the deep,

Low voice of conscience.

J. G. Whittier.

February 24.

If tears were dry and laughter should seem strange; And if the soul should doubt itself and falter: Since God is God, and He can never change, The fashions of the earth and Heaven may alter; Why should we care?

Mrs. S. M. B. Piatt.

His face is truly of the Roman mould,
He bears within the heart of Cato, too;
Although his look may seem severe and cold.
He never would be false to truth or you.

C. F. Bates.

February 25.

He loved his friends, forgave his foes; And if his words were harsh at times. He spared his fellow-men, - his blows Fell only on their crimes.

MARCH.

BENEATH the sheltering walls the thin snow clings, —
Dead winter's skeleton, left bleaching white,
Disjointed, crumbling, on unfriendly fields.
The inky pools surrender tardily
At noon, to patient herds, a frosty drink
From jagged rims of ice; a subtle red
Of life is kindling every twig and stalk
Of lowly meadow growths; the willows wrap
Their stems in furry white; the pines grow gray
A little in the biting wind; midday
Brings tiny burrowed creatures, peeping out

Ah, March! we know thou art Kind-hearted, spite of ugly looks and threats, And, out of sight, art nursing April's violets. Mrs. H. H. Yackson.

Wert thou an untried dweller in the sky? Is there betwixt the cherub that thou wert, The cherub and the angel thou mayst be, A life's probation in this sadder world? Art thou with memory of two things only, Music and light, left upon earth astray, And, by the watchers at the gate of heaven, Looked for with fear and trembling?

Sweet May! Without an envy of her crown
And bridal; patient stringing emeralds
And shining rubies for the brows of birch
And maple; flinging garlands of pure white
And pink, which to their bloom add prophecy;
Gold cups o'er-filling on a thousand hills,

And Nature, the old nurse, took
The child upon her knee,
Saying: "Here is a story-book
Thy father has written for thee."

And he wandered away and away
With Nature the dear old nurse,
Who sang to him night and day,
The rhymes of the universe.

He lives wherever men to men
In perilous hours his words repeat;
Where clangs the forge, where glides the pen,
Where toil and traffic crowd the street;
And in whatever time or place
Earth's purest souls their purpose strengthen,
Down the broad pathway of the race
The shadow of his name shall lengthen.

JUNE.

TIS Heaven alone that is given away, 'Tis only God may be had for the asking; No price is set on the lavish summer; June may be had by the poorest comer.

And what is so rare as a day in June? Then, if ever, come perfect days. Then Heaven tries the earth if it be in tune. And over it softly her warm ear lays.

7. R. Lowell.

The bobolink has come, and, like the soul Of the sweet season vocal in a bird, Gurgles in ecstasy we know not what Save June! Dear June! Now God be praised for Fune! Y. R. Lowell.

June 1.

Let him not boast who puts his armor on As he who puts it off, the battle done. Study yourselves; and most of all note well Wherein kind Nature meant you to excel. Not every blossom ripens into fruit.

H. W. Longfellow.

June 2. -

Wisely, my son, while yet thy days are long, And this fair change of seasons passes slow, Gather and treasure up the good they yield, — All that they teach of virtue, of pure thoughts And kind affections, reverence for thy God And for thy brethren; so when thou shalt come Into these barren years, thou mayst not bring A mind unfurnished, and a withered heart.

W. C. Bryant.

Yes, there's a luck in most things, and in none More than in being born at the right time; It boots not what the labor to be done, Or feats of arms, or art, or building rhyme. Not that the heavens the little can make great, But many a man has lived an age too late.

Little birds sit on the telegraph-wires, And chitter, and flitter, and fold their wings;

Little things light on the lines of our lives, —
Hopes, and joys, and acts of to-day;

Nor catch what the hidden lightnings say.
Yet from end to end His meaning arrives,
And His word runs underneath all the way.

THERE! sweep these foolish leaves away, I will not crush my brains to-day!
Look! are the southern curtains drawn?
Fetch me a fan, and so begone!

Who knows it not, — this dead recoil Of weary fibres stretched with toil, — The pulse that flutters faint and low When Summer's seething breezes blow?

O Nature, bare thy loving breast, And give thy child one hour of rest, — One little hour to lie unseen Beneath thy scarf of leafy green!

So, curtained by a singing pine, Its murmuring voice shall blend with mine, Till, lost in dreams, my faltering lay In sweeter music dies away.

AUGUST.

ALL the long August afternoon,
The little drowsy stream
Whispers a melancholy tune,
As if it dreamed of June
And whispered in its dream.

The thistles show beyond the brook
Dust on their down and bloom,
And out of many a weed-grown nook
The aster-flowers look
With eyes of tender gloom.

The silent orchard aisles are sweet
With smell of ripening fruit.
Through the sere grass, in shy retreat,
Flutter, at coming feet,
The robins strange and mute.

There is no wind to stir the leaves,
The harsh leaves overhead;
Only the querulous cricket grieves,
And shrilling locust weaves
A song of Summer dead.

Bending above the spicy woods which blaze, Arch skies so blue they flash, and hold the sun Immeasurably far; the waters run Too slow, so freighted are the river-ways With gold of elms and birches from the maze Of forests. Chestnuts, clicking one by one, Escape from satin burs; her fringes done, The gentian spreads them out in sunny days, And, like late revellers at dawn, the chance Of one sweet, mad, last hour, all things assail, And conquering, flush and spin; while to enhance The spell, by sunset door, wrapped in a veil Of red and purple mists, the summer, pale, Steals back alone for one more song and dance.

NOVEMBER.

THE melancholy days are come, the saddest of the year.

Of wailing winds, and naked woods, and meadows brown and sere.

Heaped in the hollows of the grove, the autumn leaves lie dead :

They rustle to the eddying gust, and to the rabbit's tread.

The robin and the wren are flown, and from the shrubs the jay,

And from the wood-top calls the crow, through all the gloomy day.

Where are the flowers, the fair young flowers, that lately sprang and stood

In brighter light, and softer airs, a beauteous sisterhood?

Alas! they all are in their graves, the gentle race of flowers

Are lying in their lowly beds, with the fair and good of ours.

The rain is falling where they lie, but the cold November rain

Calls not from out the gloomy earth the lovely ones again.

O Thou whose care is over all, Who heedest even the sparrow's fall, Keep in the little maiden's breast The pity which is now its guest! Let not her cultured years make less The childhood charm of tenderness, But let her feel as well as know, Nor harder with her polish grow.

J. G. Whittier.

November 5.

I know not and will never pry, But trust our human heart for all; Wonders that from the seeker fly, Into an open sense may fall.

Hide in thine own soul, and surprise
The password of the unwary elves;
Seek it, thou canst not bribe their spies;
Unsought, they whisper it themselves.

J. R. Lowell.

November 6.

I would be fire and fragrance, light and air, All gracious things that serve thee at thy need; Music, to lift thy heart above all care,— The wise and charming book that thou dost read.

There is no power that cheers and blesses thee But I do envy it, beneath the sun!
Thy health, thy rest, thy refuge I would be;
Thy heaven on earth, thine every good in one.

November woods are bare and still;
November days are bright and good;
Life's noon burns up life's morning chill;
Life's night rests feet which long have stood;
Some warm soft bed in field or wood,
The mother will not fail to keep,
Where we can "lay us down to sleep."

Mrs. H. H. Jackson.

November 8. -

My life is cold, and dark, and dreary; It rains and the wind is never weary;

Be still, sad heart! and cease repining; Behind the clouds is the sun still shining; Thy fate is the common fate of all, Into each life some rain must fall, Some days must be dark and dreary.

H. W. Longfellow.

November 9.

If the world's a vale of tears,
Smile, till rainbows span it!
Breathe the love that life endears,
Clear of clouds to fan it.
Of your gladness lend a gleam
Unto souls that shiver;
Show them how dark Sorrow's stream
Blends with Hope's bright river.

C. F. Bates.

For I know and esteem you, and feel that your nature is noble,

Lifting mine up to a higher, a more ethereal level.

H. W. Longfellow.

November 11.

Her maiden pride, her haughty name, My dumb devotion shall not shame; The love that no return doth crave To knightly levels lifts the slave.

No lance have I, in joust or fight, To splinter in my lady's sight; But at her feet, how blest were I For any need of hers to die!

J. G. Whittier.

November 12.

I stand on the top, but I look not back
To the way behind me spread;
Not to the path my feet have trod,
But the path they still must tread.

And I have gained in hope and trust, Till the future looks so bright, That, letting go of the hand of Faith, I walk, at times, by sight.

Phabe Cary.

Live not without a friend! The Alpine rock must own

Its mossy grace or else be nothing but a stone.

Live not without a God! however low or high, In every house should be a window to the sky. W. W. Story.

So from the trodden ways of earth,
Seem some sweet souls who veil their worth,
And offer to the careless glance,
The clouding grave of circumstance.
They blossom best where hearth-fires burn;
To loving eyes alone they turn
The flowers of inward grace, that hide
Their beauty from the world outside.

7. G. Whittier.

November 15. ---

I know a little damsel as light of foot as the air, And with smile as gay as the sun o' the May, And clouds of golden hair.

To plague me and to please me she knows a thousand arts,

And against my will I love her still
With all my heart of hearts!

Serve yourself, would you be well served, is an excellent adage.

That's what I always say; if you wish a thing to be well done,

You must do it yourself, you must not leave it to others.

H. W. Longfellow.

For looking backward through the year, Along the way my feet have pressed, I see sweet places everywhere,— Sweet places where my soul had rest.

My sorrows have not been so light,
The chastening hand I could not trace;
Nor have my blessings been so great
That they have hid my Father's face.

Phabe Cary.

Sometimes the arrowy sharpness of a sorrow, Piercing life's common calm,

Smites hidden rocks of comfort, which to-morrow O'erflow in healing balm.

'Neath burdens that we stagger in the taking We walk erect at length;

And bitter blows that bowed almost to breaking, Reveal our secret strength.

Let us, then, be what we are, and speak what we think, and in all things

Keep yourselves loyal to truth, and the sacred professions of friendship.

It is no secret I tell you, nor am I ashamed to declare it:

I have liked to be with you, to see you, to speak with you always.

H. W. Longfellow.

They say that he has genius. I but see
That he gets wisdom as the flower gets hue,
While others hive it like the toiling bee;
That, with him, all things beautiful keep new,
And every morn the first morn seems to be—
So freshly look abroad his eyes of blue!
What he has written seems to me no more
Than I have thought a thousand times before!

Henceforth the tiller Truth shall hold,

And I will brave the storms of Fate,

Though light I seem and gay.

The threads our hands in blindness spin No self-determined plan weaves in; The shuttle of the unseen powers Works out a pattern not as ours. Through wish, resolve, and act, our will Is moved by undreamed forces still: And no man measures in advance His strength with untried circumstance.

J. G. Whittier.

Unmurmuring, patient, cheerful, pitiful, Prompt with the holy sufferer to endure, Forsaking all to follow the dear Lord,-Thus did he make his glorious calling sure.

While we are young our youth too near for Art doth lie -

Our life a poem is, but for another's eye.

Not in the present we the present charm can feel, But Memory and Hope have Beauty's wondrous seal.

Time melts the dross away and leaves the ore alone, And in a magic ring it sets life's opal stone.

The task was thine to mould and fashion
Life's plastic newness into grace:
To make the boyish heart heroic,
And light with thought the maiden's face.

O'er all the land, in town and prairie, With bended heads of mourning, stand The living forms that owe their beauty And fitness to thy shaping hand.

Y. G. Whittier.

In the haste of youth we miss
Its best of blisses;
Sweeter than the stolen kiss

To him all things were possible, and seemed Not what he had accomplished, but had dreamed, And what were tasks to others were his play, The pastime of an idle holiday.

So sweet, so rich, so delicate;
Eternal summer-time it brings,

He was so human! whether strong or weak,
Far from his kind he neither sank nor soared,
But sat an equal guest at every board:

He met a stranger, there he left a friend.

Announced by all the trumpets of the sky, Arrives the snow, and, driving o'er the fields, Seems nowhere to alight; the whited air Hides hills and woods, the river, and the heaven, And veils the farmhouse at the garden's end. The sled and traveller stopped, the courier's feet Delayed, all friends shut out, the housemates sit Around the radiant fireplace, enclosed In a tumultuous privacy of storm.

R. W. Emerson.

To seek is better than to gain, The fond hope dies as we attain; Life's fairest things are those which seem; The best is that of which we dream.
